OCTOBER 28, 2012 | 2PM

NTD Television Presents

SHEN YUN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CARNEGIE HALL | OCT. 28

MUSIC WE'VE BEEN WAITING FOR

THE SHEN YUN ORCHESTRA—with its indisputably contagious melodies, authentic Chinese flair, and originality—has fascinated audiences as it has accompanied the dancers of Shen Yun Performing Arts around the world.

For six years, Shen Yun has given performances to full houses at the greatest venues in New York, London, Sydney, and beyond. It has toured to 23 countries and has been acclaimed by international media and eminent individuals alike.

Audience members have longed for the day when the music of the Shen Yun Orchestra would be performed, not just as accompaniment, but on stage in concert.

That day has arrived.

PROGRAM:

Shen Yun compositions including music inspired by ancient dynasties, indigenous peoples, and folk melodies

Beethoven: Egmont Overture • Rimsky-Korsakov:

The Procession of the Nobles, from Mlada

Vivaldi: Concerto in C Major for Two Trumpets

World premiere works by Shen Yun composers

Pieces for solo soprano & orchestra, and solo tenor & orchestra • And more...

Program subject to change without notice

The Shen Yun Symphony Orchestra rehearsing for its international debut.

A New Musical Experience

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD a duet by a trumpet and an erhu? Or a harp and a pipa? It's the beautiful, cross-cultural sound that is the music of the Shen Yun Symphony Orchestra. The Orchestra takes the traditions of China's 5,000-year-old civilization and combines them with the power and precision of the Western symphony orchestra—creating a sound that is both stunning and unique.

This performance presents not only Shen Yun's Chinese-inspired music; it also pays tribute to Western classical music by performing some of that tradition's most celebrated works.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

In addition to orchestral music from East and West, there will be selections for orchestra and soloists—

“Lovely traditional Chinese music and fantastic singers.”

— DC Theatre Scene

both vocal and instrumental. Here are a few highlights of the orchestral pieces:

In A Dunhuang Dream, we hear a sculptor carving stone, deep in the ancient Dunhuang Caves of western China. As the sculptor tires, a vision—the climax of the piece—gives him artistic inspiration. Snowflakes Welcoming Spring is a lively eastern Chinese folk-style piece that mimics the sounds of whirling snow and children playing amidst it.

Distinctive melodies of Tibet are featured in Khata for the Gods as the people celebrate the harvest. We hear the dainty footsteps and elegant demeanor of noblewomen in Ladies of the Manchu Court as they delicately dance in shoes of the Qing dynasty era (1644-1911).

There is a solemn side to the program as well. No Regret depicts the courage of a young man in contemporary China who loses his life on account of his beliefs. And the program ends with Divine Compassion, a world premiere work that leaves us uplifted: it shows that, although the world may be passing through a difficult period of history, in the end it will undergo a transformation, and goodness will triumph.

Ultimately, though, the music must speak for itself. This October 28, take in a musical event unlike anything you've experienced before.

Classified

Sex offenders are classified as Level 1, 2, or 3 prior to their release from prison.

Level 2 and 3 sex offenders, as they are classified by the state, are those most likely to repeat their crimes.

► The risk level dictates how long a person must remain registered as a sex offender, and how much and what kind of information can be given in community notifications.

► Level 1 offenders are, by law, not listed in the registry maintained on the Department of Criminal Justice Services website. Level 2 and 3 are listed, including their exact addresses and information on where they go to school or their employer.

► Information on their conviction, the type of victim they are most likely to target and the methodology of their crime are also available to the public.

But the state is not required to get approval from a community before placing a sex offender there, as South Ozone Park parents like Capuano were furious to learn. Information about sex offenders is made available to local law enforcement, who may then notify neighbors at their discretion, according to Janine Kava at the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services.

SWEAT. SCORE. AS YOU GET OLDER, REALLY GREAT. BUT DON'T FORGET TO VACCINATE.

ZOSTAVAX® (Zoster Vaccine Live) is available at certain pharmacies and medical practices. Talk to your health care professional or visit findZOSTAVAX.com for more information.

Now's the time to help prevent Shingles with ZOSTAVAX.

ZOSTAVAX is a vaccine that helps prevent Shingles in adults 50 years of age or older. Shingles is caused by the same virus that causes chickenpox. The virus stays in your body and can resurface at any time as Shingles—a painful, blistering rash. And no matter how healthy you feel, your risk increases as you get older.

The sooner you get vaccinated with ZOSTAVAX, the better your chances of protecting yourself from Shingles. In fact, the ACIP* of the CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) recommends that appropriate adults 60 years of age and older get vaccinated to help prevent Shingles.

Talk to your health care professional to see if ZOSTAVAX is right for you.

ZOSTAVAX is given as a single shot. ZOSTAVAX cannot be used to treat Shingles, or the nerve pain that may follow Shingles, once you have it. For more information, visit ZOSTAVAX.com or call 1-877-9 SHINGLES.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Please read the Patient Information on the adjacent page.

ABOUT ZOSTAVAX

ZOSTAVAX is a vaccine that is used for adults 50 years of age or older to prevent Shingles (also known as zoster).

Important Safety Information

- ZOSTAVAX does not protect everyone, so some people who get the vaccine may still get Shingles.
- You should not get ZOSTAVAX if you are allergic to any of its ingredients, including gelatin or neomycin, have a weakened immune system, take high doses of steroids, or are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. You should not get ZOSTAVAX to prevent chickenpox.
- Talk to your health care professional if you plan to get ZOSTAVAX at the same time as PNEUMOVAX®23 (Pneumococcal Vaccine Polyvalent) because it may be better to get these vaccines at least 4 weeks apart.
- Possible side effects include redness, pain, itching, swelling, hard lump, warmth, or bruising at the injection site, as well as headache.
- ZOSTAVAX contains a weakened chickenpox virus. Tell your health care professional if you will be in close contact with newborn infants, someone who may be pregnant and has not had chickenpox or been vaccinated against chickenpox, or someone who has problems with their immune system. Patient Information about ZOSTAVAX® (pronounced "ZOS tah vax") Generic name: Zoster Vaccine Live

You should read this summary of information about ZOSTAVAX before you are vaccinated. If you have any questions about ZOSTAVAX after reading this page, you should ask your health care provider. This information does not take the place of talking about ZOSTAVAX with your doctor, nurse, or other health care provider. Only your health care provider can decide if ZOSTAVAX is right for you.

What is ZOSTAVAX and how does it work?
ZOSTAVAX is a vaccine that is used for adults 50 years of age or older to prevent shingles (also known as zoster).

ZOSTAVAX contains a weakened chickenpox virus (varicella-zoster virus).

ZOSTAVAX works by helping your immune system protect you from getting shingles.

If you do get shingles even though you have been vaccinated, ZOSTAVAX may help prevent the nerve pain that can follow shingles in some people. ZOSTAVAX does not protect everyone, so some people who get the vaccine may still get shingles.

ZOSTAVAX cannot be used to treat shingles, or the nerve pain that may follow shingles, once you have it.

What do I need to know about shingles and the virus that causes it?

Shingles is caused by the same virus that causes chickenpox. Once you have had chickenpox, the virus can stay in your nervous system for many years. For reasons that are not fully understood, the virus may become active again and give you shingles. Age and problems with the immune system may increase your chances of getting shingles.

Shingles is a rash that is usually on one side of the body. The rash begins as a cluster of small red spots that often blister. The rash can be painful. Shingles rashes usually last up to 30 days and, for most people, the pain associated with the rash lessens as it heals.

Who should not get ZOSTAVAX?

You should not get ZOSTAVAX if you:

- are allergic to any of its ingredients.
- are allergic to gelatin or neomycin.
- have a weakened immune system (for example, an immune deficiency, leukemia, lymphoma, or HIV/AIDS).
- take high doses of steroids by injection or by mouth.
- are pregnant or plan to get pregnant.

You should not get ZOSTAVAX to prevent chickenpox.

Children should not get ZOSTAVAX.

How is ZOSTAVAX given?

ZOSTAVAX is given as a single dose by injection under the skin.

What should I tell my health care provider before I get ZOSTAVAX?

You should tell your health care provider if you:

- have or have had any medical problems.
- take any medicines, including non-prescription medicines, and dietary supplements.
- have any allergies, including allergies to neomycin or gelatin.

- had an allergic reaction to another vaccine.
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant.
- are breast-feeding.

Tell your health care provider if you expect to be in close contact (including household contact) with newborn infants, someone who may be pregnant and has not had chickenpox or been vaccinated against chickenpox, or someone who has problems with their immune system. Your health care provider can tell you what situations you may need to avoid.

Can I get ZOSTAVAX with other vaccines?

Talk to your health care provider if you plan to get ZOSTAVAX at the same time as the flu vaccine.

Talk to your health care provider if you plan to get ZOSTAVAX at the same time as PNEUMOVAX®23 (Pneumococcal Vaccine Polyvalent) because it may be better to get these vaccines at least 4 weeks apart.

What are the possible side effects of ZOSTAVAX?

The most common side effects that people in the clinical studies reported after receiving the vaccine include:

- redness, pain, itching, swelling, hard lump, warmth, or bruising where the shot was given.
- headache

The following additional side effects have been reported with ZOSTAVAX:

- allergic reactions, which may be serious and may include difficulty in breathing or swallowing. If you have an allergic reaction, call your doctor right away.
- chickenpox
- fever

- hives at the injection site
- joint pain
- muscle pain
- nausea
- rash
- rash at the injection site
- swollen glands near the injection site (that may last a few days to a few weeks)

Tell your health care provider if you have any new or unusual symptoms after you receive ZOSTAVAX. For a complete list of side effects, ask your health care provider.

Call 1-800-986-8999 to report any exposure to ZOSTAVAX during pregnancy.

What are the ingredients of ZOSTAVAX?

Active Ingredient: a weakened form of the varicella-zoster virus.

Inactive Ingredients: sucrose, hydrolyzed porcine gelatin, sodium chloride, monosodium L-glutamate, sodium phosphate dibasic, potassium phosphate monobasic, potassium chloride.

This page summarizes important information about ZOSTAVAX. If you would like more information, talk to your health care provider or visit the website at www.ZOSTAVAX.com or call 1-800-622-4477.

'RICHARD HOOKED ME UP WITH JESSICA ALBA!'

Opinion

JUAN NICOLAS PINZON GUEVARA

METRO WORLD NEWS
IN BOGOTÁ, COLOMBIA

This experience changed my life. I haven't finished counting the ways in which I've benefited from this adventure. I met Richard Branson — that was incredible. As if that wasn't enough, I also met many entrepreneurs who model their own ideas and manage to find a way to make them a reality, such as the CEO of PUMA and the actress Jessica Alba!

Interacting with these personalities allowed me to see from different points of view problems and realities, advice and failures, in a more real way, a more global form. I shared this magnificent moment with important people and with the future Richard Bransons of the world. I talked to leading Harvard Business School professor Michael Porter at the World Business Forum, where he told me: "Colombia is a lovely country," and then congratulated me on this achievement.

"Thank you Metro, thank you Richard, see you very soon!"

Thanks to a conversation with Jennifer Utterback, CEO of Metro Mexico, I revisited the understanding that the reality we live in can only be described in a simple way. It is now very clear to me that you have to open yourself to the world in order to see what lies beyond borders. You have to always be open to different cultures, welcoming of splendid people and of revolutionary ideas. As a Colombian, I am proud of having witnessed this, I am a different person after that day; my ideas and my reality have changed.

Richard Branson said to me: "You are very brave and you pave your own destiny. The mere fact of having quit your job — a good position — in order to share this experience with me is something worth noting. It takes guts, and of course we will be in touch, Nicolás." I am extremely happy to have shared an entire day with him, I learned so very much.

Thank you Metro, thank you Richard, see you very soon!

WHEREAS, on August 7 2012, the Public Health and Health Planning Council of the State of the New York, at the request of the Commissioner of Health of New York, and pursuant to Public Health Law § 225(4) and (5) and Article 2 of the State Administrative Procedures Act, amended the New York Sanitary Code making it a violation to possess, manufacture, distribute, sell or offer to sell synthetic phenethylamines or synthetic cannabinoids, or products containing the same (the regulation can be viewed online at the Department of Health's Internet address <http://www.health.ny.gov/professionals/narcotic/>); and

NY defends contested police tactics in Bronx 'stop and frisk' cases

A New York City attorney on Monday told a federal judge that new measures by police had addressed many concerns by civil liberties groups and minorities about the city's controversial "stop and frisk" tactics.

At a court hearing in one of three main lawsuits challenging the tactics, the city said the New York Police Department has new training programs and guidelines that would resolve concerns in this case about stops of people in and around certain buildings in the Bronx.

The NYPD and Mayor Michael Bloomberg have defended the program, in which police stop and question people they suspect of unlawful activity and frisk those they suspect are carrying weapons. They say it has lowered crime and taken guns off the streets. The police deny that race or quotas motivate stops.

New training and increased NYPD internal scrutiny of the tactic had addressed the lawsuit's complaints about the Bronx stops, said Mark Zuckerman, a city attorney. "The plaintiffs are under a major misconception in this case," he argued.

Christopher Dunn, an attorney for the New York Civil Liberties Union, said the new training programs are a sign the police "understand that this is real."

"Stops on the street can be a humiliating experience," he said. "But here it's even more. We're talking about people who are walking in and out of their own homes. These stops are an assault on the sanctity of one's own home." REUTERS

The New York Giants may have won Sunday's big game, but they came back to a loss.

The Giants returned from a road win Sunday against the San Francisco 49ers to discover that their cars had been broken into while they were on the opposite coast.

Burglars busted into the parking lot at around 4 a.m. on Sunday in East Rutherford, N.J., where players park while they are away, said Lt. Stephen Jones, a spokesman for the New Jersey State Police. Jones told Metro that detectives were working to identify whether the cars were staff or players' vehicles.

STATEN ISLAND. A couple in Staten Island has been denied their request to change their last name to "ChristIsKing," CBS reports.

Civil court judge Philip Straniere cited the separation of church and state in his ruling earlier this month, but Pastor Michael Nwadiuko of Christ the Lord Evangelical Association and his wife, Angela, deny they are

"We met as a family and decided that this is a name we like," Nwadiuko reportedly told 1010 WINS.

"We're not trying to make everyone become Christian, because not everybody will become Christian. We love people whether they are Christian or not," he said.

Straniere also denied their request six years ago to change their son Jeremy's name to "JesusIsLord." ● METRO/DT

Citi's CEO Pandit exits abruptly after board clash

Citigroup's Vikram Pandit quit as chief executive yesterday after months of simmering tensions with the board — an abrupt change that surprised investors and employees of the third-largest U.S. bank.

Pandit told Reuters the decision to leave was his own, and that he had been contemplating the move for some time.

Multiple sources within and outside the bank said Pandit's departure followed months of tension with Chairman Michael O'Neill over a range of issues, including compensation and the role of Chief Operating Officer John Havens. On Tuesday, Havens also resigned.

Pandit has been involved in some high-profile snafus this year, including the bank selling the remaining stake of its retail brokerage business to Morgan Stanley at a loss.

High profile defeats

Pandit's resignation followed a series of high-profile mishaps this year. In March, the Federal Reserve rejected the bank's plans to return capital to shareholders; Pandit had told analysts and investors the bank had enough capital to return some to shareholders.

Last month, Pandit agreed to a low sale price for his bank's stake in the brokerage operated by Morgan Stanley. Citigroup had to take a $4.7 billion charge in the third quarter to write down the value of that stake. REUTERS

Not on board

► The board's relationship with Pandit was already under pressure after shareholders rejected the CEO's pay package in an advisory vote in April. He was awarded more than $15 million in 2011 compensation, but 55 percent of shareholders voted against it.

'I take responsibility' for Benghazi, Clinton says

GETTY IMAGES

► Congress has increased pressure on the State Department to release information about the attack.

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton assumed responsibility Monday for last month's deadly attack on the U.S. diplomatic mission in Benghazi, Libya, which has become an issue in the hard-fought U.S. presidential campaign.

"I take responsibility" for what happened on Sept. 11, Clinton said in an interview with CNN during a visit to Peru, adding that President Barack Obama and Vice President Joe Biden would not be responsible for specific security instructions for U.S. diplomatic facilities.

"I'm in charge of the State Department's 60,000-plus people all over the world," Clinton said.

Clinton's comments followed stepped-up criticism of the Obama administration over the Benghazi attack, which Republican presidential challenger Mitt Romney has sought to use to dent Obama's foreign policy credibility before the Nov. 6 election.

"Remember, this was an attack that went on for hours," Clinton told Fox News. "There had to be a lot of sorting out. ... Everyone said, here's what we know, subject to change."

The administration initially attributed the violence to protests over an anti-Islam film posted on YouTube and said it was not premeditated. Obama and other officials have since said the incident was a terrorist attack.

Romney finds staunch support in rural areas

Rural voters have been a Republican bastion for at least a generation, with Democrats trying to at least be competitive so small-town voters don't offset their advantage in cities.

A new poll suggests they may not be competitive enough, Bloomberg reports in its Political Capital blog.

Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney has opened up a 22-point advantage among rural voters in swing states, according to a poll released today by the National Rural Assembly, a group of largely left-leaning, prairie populist groups. The poll, funded by the Carnegie Corporation of New York, holds bipartisan credentials.

And it's not good news for President Barack Obama. BLOOMBERG

"It's fair to say his lead among these rural voters is what's helping him in swing states overall."

Obama, Romney testy in clash over economics, future plans

TIMOTHY A. CLARY/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

► Obama and Romney speak during the second presidential debate at Hofstra University.

President Barack Obama and Republican rival Mitt Romney clashed repeatedly on jobs, energy and Libya in their second debate on Tuesday, with Obama moving aggressively to challenge his opponent.

Obama was much sharper and more energetic than in their first encounter two weeks ago. The Democrat fought back against accusations by his rival that he had played down the attack by Islamist militants in Libya last month that killed four Americans, including the U.S. Ambassador Chris Stevens.

"I'm the president and I'm always responsible," Obama said. The two men argued over whether Obama had described the Libya attack as terrorism.

Romney accused his opponent of overseeing a stagnant economy. "The middle class has been crushed over the last four years and jobs have been too scarce," the former Massachusetts governor said.

Quoted: Romney

"I want to make small businesses grow ... I spent my life in the private sector. I know why jobs come and ... go."

Quoted: Obama

"And [promises] that I haven't been able to keep, it's not for a lack of trying and we're going to get it done in the second term."

"I know what it takes to get this economy going," he said. "I know what it takes to create good jobs again."

Obama repeatedly accused Romney of misstating his policies as president, and resurrected his charge that the economic proposals put forward by the former private equity executive were designed to protect and bolster the wealthy at the expense of the middle class. The debate at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y., was in an intimate town-hall format, in which some of more than 80 undecided local voters f asked questions.

Both candidates were able to roam the stage to talk directly to the questioners, and at times they circled each other warily like prize fighters.

Romney approached Obama at one point to ask repeatedly if he had reduced licenses and permits for energy drilling on federal land. REUTERS

Ohio early voting

Small victory for Dems in Ohio

The U.S. Supreme Court gave President Barack Obama's campaign a legal victory in the pivotal state of Ohio today, backing early-voting rights for the weekend before the Nov. 6 election.

The justices rejected a bid by Ohio Republicans to limit the early voting on those days to members of the military. The rebuff came in a one-line order, with no published dissent.

What's it about?

Democrats and Republicans have jockeyed for months in Ohio over early voting, an option that favored Democratic candidates in 2010 and 2006.

In previous years, each Ohio county decided whether to offer voting on the weekend before the election. The state's Republican leadership sought to make a statewide change for this year and allow voting that weekend only by military members, who historically favor Republican candidates.

What's at stake?

A trial judge cited an estimate that 100,000 Ohioans would vote in the three days leading up to Election Day. Ohio controls 18 of the 270 Electoral College votes needed to win the presidency. BLOOMBERG

The hard truth about fact-checking campaigns

Fact-checking presidential campaigns has become a kind of sport in recent years, complete with scorecards tallying the competition between ratings of true, false or somewhere in between.

What has been missing — and is likely to stay missing in Tuesday's presidential debate — is suspense. The winner in the ratings game is generally the same: somewhere in between. The terminology differs from fact-checker to fact-checker. But the reality is that the vast majority of claims fact-checkers put under scrutiny are deemed to be partly true or partly false but rarely completely one or the other.

The triumph of the neither wholly true nor wholly false partly reflects the complexity of the issues. But credit mostly goes to obfuscation by the campaigns.

Theirs is a world of apples-to-oranges comparisons and cherry-picked time frames, enveloped by a fog of competing studies. As fact-checkers have noted, for example, the increase in the federal budget deficit cited by the campaigns depends entirely on the starting point for the calculation.

It's bad for President Barack Obama if the starting point for the calculation is fiscal 2008, which ended before Obama took office and is the reference point for the campaign of Republican candidate Mitt Romney. But it's not quite as bad if the starting point is January 2009, when he actually assumed office. REUTERS

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW: LOUISE MUSHIKIWABO RWANDAN FOREIGN MINISTER

Introduction

THE GOVERNMENT OF RWANDA has confirmed to Metro that it may pursue legal action against a United Nations-appointed Group of Experts that has accused the small central African nation of stoking a military rebellion in the neighboring Democratic Republic of Congo.

Rwandan Foreign Minister Louise Mushikiwabo said in an exclusive interview yesterday that the expert panel has been "hijacked" by the political agenda of its coordinator, Steven Hege, who Rwanda says has a long history of opposition to the nation's government.

"We will not take this kind of treatment lying down," Mushikiwabo told Metro.

Interview

You have vigorously criticized not only the U.N. reports compiled by the Group of Experts accusing Rwanda of supporting the M-23 rebel militia in the Democratic Republic of Congo, but also the methodology employed in these reports — and, above all, "bias" on the part of the group's coordinator.

We have endeavored to be objective in our assessment of Mr. Hege. To this end, we employed the Washington, D.C., law firm Akin Gump to review Mr. Hege's prior writings on Rwanda as well as the genocidal army and militia which killed more than 1 million people in a veritable Holocaust over three summer months in 1994. The fact-based evidence, which was vetted by Akin Gump and submitted to the Security Council, in the case of Hege, is damning in the extreme and should have disqualified him from taking the position as coordinator of the Group of Experts in the first place.

What has Hege written prior to taking up his position as coordinator?

First and foremost, Hege has served as an out-and-out apologist for the remnants of the very genocidal forces who, after committing their genocidal crimes, became known as the FDLR after taking refuge into the eastern DRC when they were chased out of Rwanda in 1994. Hege characterizes the FDLR militia, whose leaders are either under indictment at the International Criminal Court at the Hague or on trial in Germany, as if its members are somehow victims, and not perpetrators, of mass atrocities. In this "fact sheet" written in 2009 and entitled "Understanding the FDLR," Hege also described, falsely, the current Rwandan government as made up of illegitimate outsiders, a "Ugandan Tutsi elite," and that peace in our region is only possible "when international opinion eventually sours on the Rwandan regime." With this objective in mind, Hege's hatchet job, on the platform which the UN report has accorded him, becomes frighteningly clear. The reports which he and the Group of Experts have submitted to the UN Sanctions Committee wouldn't pass muster in the lowest imaginable court of law. As Akin Gump

Quoted

"The U.N. process for the appointment and vetting of 'experts' is broken and in desperate needs of repair."

MINISTER MUSHIKIWABO

concluded, "The lack of transparency, the reliance on questionable sources and the complete lack of analysis of witness bias, motivation or contradictory evidence in the conclusions reached [make] those conclusions highly unreliable."

Are you saying Mr. Hege isn't entitled to his point of view?

Of course, Mr. Hege is entitled to his views as a private citizen.

But his extremist views are now well known in Africa because of the platform he has been given by the United Nations. Referencing Hege's call, in a 2010 issues paper, for ethnic minority groups to preference their economic and other interests in favor of the majority population, regardless of circumstance; according to perhaps the leading newspaper in East Africa, Hege's writing that certain ethnic groups "must clear a higher bar of citizenship is central to racial ideology everywhere, whether in the form of anti-Semitism of the persecution of Japanese Americans in World War II."

Hege knows that he is exposed on the matter of his prior writings. When this publication was discovered by the media in July, Hege pulled it from the Internet.

I want to put the entire matter with Hege into its proper perspective. Yes, the methodology employed by the Group of Experts is wholly flawed. But, above all, what we have here is the moral disgrace committed in the name of the U.N. A sympathizer or, more accurately, apologist of genocide perpetrators has been put in a position to sit in judgment of the vic-

Q&A

What is the status of the conflict in the eastern Congo?

Eleven countries of the region, including Rwanda and the DRC, are joining forces to bring about a lasting solution to the crisis. This includes deploying a neutral force to monitor the borders between the eastern DRC and its neighbors. It also includes a "joint verification mechanism," which is a way to test the truth or otherwise the many claims and counter-claims that circulate during periods of instability. The regional peace process has led to a two-month cease-fire, and there is overwhelming consensus that the only way out of the mess is a political solution, not a military one. It is a complex part of the world. There are dozens of armed groups running riot, and the state of governance is weak. The problems didn't emerge overnight and can't be fixed overnight, but there is a strong belief that a regional solution is not only the best way forward — it is the only way forward.

tims, the Rwandan people.

Are you suggesting a bigger U.N. problem here?

Yes, I am. It is clear that the U.N. process for the appointment and vetting of "experts" is broken and in desperate need of repair. The failed expert selection on Congo, which has somehow turned into an indictment of Rwanda, is but one of a number of recent miscarriages of justice of the same kind hurting African countries, including expert panels on Cote d'Ivoire and Somalia-Eritrea. The time has now come for the international community to know about the treatment being meted out to powerless countries like Rwanda through unjust, outdated and punitive international mechanisms such as the U.N. Group of Experts when it falls into the hands of individuals with a personal political agenda.

Official statement

Metro contacted the U.N. for comment. The organization's official statement is: Until all of Steve Hege's findings on Rwanda are final and published, the U.N. has no comment on the matter.

Depp planning to launch eccentric, yet dashing, book imprint

Celebrities are constantly launching perfumes and clothing lines. But Johnny Depp is not just any old actor. He's Johnny Depp! He's gotta do things differently! So what is the famed actor's new vanity project? Why, he's going to publish books!

According to a statement by Harper Collins, Depp is launching an imprint with the book publisher called Infinitum Nihil (translation: "nothing last forever"). Per the statement, Depp says, "I pledge, on behalf of Infinitum Nihil, that we will do our best to deliver publications worthy of people's time, of people's concern — publications that might ordinarily never have breached the parapet."

The imprint has already announced one book: "The Untraveled Tales of Bob Dylan" by the historian Douglas Brinkley, which is set for publication in 2015.

Interesting way to inject some glamour into the rather staid world of book publishing. And, hey, unlike the rest of us involved in the media world,

► You know it's only a matter of time before Depp works with Tim Burton on a new book.

it's not like he has to worry about the scant paycheck. But does anyone else get the mental image of Depp editing books while dressed like a pirate and using a quill pen?

Talking points

ScarJo is single again

Scarlett Johansson has split up with boyfriend Nate Naylor just weeks after she was spotted looking cozy with ex Jared Leto at a political event, according to Daily Mail. How official is the split? Naylor was even spotted clearing his belongings out of Johansson's New York home. "They never officially lived together, but Nate has moved all of his stuff out and back into his apartment," a source says.

► Greene

Ashley Greene is a frequent flier

Ashley Greene has found a downside to being successful: getting spoiled when it comes to travel. "Twilight" has ruined me," Greene tells Marie Clare magazine. "When ['Twilight'] is all over, flying internationally is going to be very hard for me. It is just not worth it to buy a first-class ticket, because of the cost." Worth it or not, Greene should have no trouble paying for it, though, as she's been smart. "I'm lucky because my dad taught me to be frugal and save," she says.

► Fey, Beyonce and Poehler: Unite!

Let's hear it for the girls

Next year is going to start out strong, at least TV-watching wise. Not only will Tina Fey and Amy Poehler co-host the 70th annual Golden Globes on Jan. 13, but Beyonce has been locked in to perform the half time show at Super Bowl XLVII on Feb. 3 in New Orleans. Now, if only the world could find a way for all three to perform together, then we could all just give up — nothing else would be that awesome again ever.

7 Amazing places to go exploring using Google Street View

► Check out the Google Maps view of Tenryu-ji, Susukinobaba-cho, Ukyo Ward, Kyoto, Japan

Unless you're planning to travel across the icy Southern Ocean or deep into the Brazilian rainforests for your next vacation, you probably won't see Antarctica or the Amazon anytime soon. The same goes for the world's less remote places. Many of us, depending on location and circumstances, may never see Australia, Asia or even common European tourist attractions.

Though it's not exactly the same as being there, we can visit these areas and other amazing sites across the globe with Google Maps. More than just checking out satellite imagery, we can actually survey the land (or the sea) with Street View as if we're on foot (or boat or rail, as the case may be).

2 Tributary of the Rio Negro, Amazon River, Brazil

In August 2011, members of Google's Brazil and U.S. Street View teams captured ground-level images of the Rio Negro Reserve. As of March 2012, you can float down the Amazon River as if you're really there.

3 Heron Island, Great Barrier Reef, Queensland, Australia

Google introduced underwater Street Views in September, allowing users to explore the sea. The Great Barrier Reef is one of the underwater attractions the service offers right now.

Facebook updates: Now with emoticons

Notice anything unusual in your Facebook feed lately?

If you're seeing a proliferation of smiley faces and hearts in your friends' comments, it's not that you haven't noticed them before. Facebook quietly rolled out the ability to add emoticons to comments late last week.

If you can't stand such iconography, take heart in the fact that Facebook users still can't use them in status updates themselves — just in the comments, which are more easily hidden or ignored.

Facebook also doesn't let you add emoticons via its mobile apps, even in comments. It does let you use them in chats and in its Messenger app, however. There is a wider variety of Facebook icons available than you might expect, including sharks and penguins. CHRIS TAYLOR FOR MASHABLE

► Swedish style blogger Elin Kling collaborated with Guess by Marciano for a capsule collection of chic fall staples ► Plus, what's on her personal must-have list

Elin Kling, the popular Swedish personal style blogger and entrepreneur (she co-founded fashion blog portal NowManifest, which was recently bought by Fairchild Fashion Media), is no stranger to the design side of pretty clothes. Last year, she became the first blogger to collaborate with H&M on a line and is now bringing her minimal chic aesthetic to a capsule collection for Guess by Marciano. Inspired by matadors and Spanish femininity, the 34-piece line features everything from a cool denim shirt to a sleek black party dress. We caught up with the busy blogger at the launch party.

What made you collaborate with Marciano?

It was really fun and a good challenge because my brand [doesn't] share the same aesthetic as Guess, so I thought it was fun to try to find a good mix together. Also, I'm the first one that they've collaborated with, so I thought that was fun, too.

How have you incorporated your own style into the collection?

I tried to not have too much of my own style, but when I look at the collection I'm like, "Hmm, yes, you can definitely see my style in it." But also you and see with the denim and the oversized sweater that I wanted to find the perfect basic pieces.

What are your three must-haves for fall?

Definitely [something] plaid. I always think you need big large knits. I'm more for knits than jackets and also just big, big, big scarves. I love them, knits on knits on knits. Christopher Kane makes really nice knits that I love.

Been a long time since 'Rock and Roll'

► "Celebration Day" was directed by Dick Carruthers, who had previously worked on videos for the White Stripes, Oasis and Take That. Visit www.ledzeppelin.com for cinema listings.

► Led Zeppelin discuss new concert film ► Why putting Jason Bonham on drums was the best way to make sure the song remained the same

Only 18,000 people got to see a somewhat reunited Led Zeppelin in 2007. More than 20 million people applied for tickets to catch the one-off, two-hour show at London's O2 Arena, featuring Robert Plant, Jimmy Page and John Paul Jones, playing their first real concert since the mid-1980s (Jason Bonham, the son of Zeppelin's original drummer, John Bonham, was on drums).

Now the millions of fans who were left out can catch what happened in the new concert film "Celebration Day," in theaters today and available on DVD on Nov. 19.

At a recent press conference in New York City, the surviving Zep members were charming and funny, relaying that choosing Jason Bonham to join them was a no-brainer.

"Once the idea was proposed — 'Would we do the concert?' — it had to be Jason," Page said.

For Bonham, who has played with Zep twice before, the giddiness of joining them again at the O2 hasn't abated.

"This really is something special and something I dreamed about all my life. I watched 'Song Remains the Same' so many times that the look that Jimmy gave John in 'No Quarter,' I remember, I looked over ... He gave me the same look," says Bonham, before turning to Page. "It probably wasn't for the same reason you [looked at] Dad, but it was very, very special for me, honestly."

Page then joked, "That was the 'where are we?' look."

"Celebration Day" includes the band's monster hits such as "Stairway to Heaven," as well as the unexpected, such as 1976's "For Your Life," which the band had never played live before.

"Celebration Day" is just a straight-up concert film, with no backstage glances, no trippy "quest" montages like in "The Song Remains the Same." They appear shaky at first but then quickly get into their old rock 'n' roll habits. Per Page, "getting it right" was a priority.

"We just really wanted to get it right and go out and play to people who maybe never heard us, who had heard about this reputation and what we were about, and basically stand up and be counted for what we were," he said.

Yes, you should get a flu shot this year

The question: Do I really need to get a flu shot?

Benjamin Franklin once said, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

This is never truer than when it comes to flu shots and avoiding the terrible illness caused by influenza. As an adult, if you become infected by the influenza virus, you may be more ill than you've been in your adult life. Symptoms like fever, body aches, shaking chills and an intractable cough may put you out of commission for 10-14 days.

The CDC and World Health Organization recommend that everyone who is at least 6 months of age get vaccinated seasonally. It is especially important for people who have other medical conditions such as heart disease, diabetes, asthma and chronic lung disease, and for pregnant women, senior citizens and health care providers or caregivers.

Almost all doctor's offices, pharmacies and clinics maintain a supply of the vaccine that is widely available this year. Vaccinations should be administered in early autumn, as flu season usually starts as early as October, and it may take up to two weeks for the vaccine to become effective. The vaccine protects against the most common strains of influenza as predicted by the WHO, and all injectable flu vaccines are produced from dead viral particles that do not cause infection or illness. Live attenuated FluMist administered by nasal inhalation may cause a temporary and mild fever or malaise, but is a much less common form of the vaccine.

The best treatment for any viral illnesses like the flu is to not get sick in the first place. Get a flu shot, wash your hands frequently, use hand sanitizer when applicable and wipe down shared keyboards, telephones and office equipment with antibacterial wipes. Cough into your elbow when you cough (so you don't transmit germs on your hands), and keep your fingers away from your eyes, nose and mouth. If you do become ill, please stay home from work or school so you don't infect everyone around you!

GOP's not some damsel in distress

RE: "ONE MAN'S SUCCESS IS ANOTHER'S FAILURE" (METRO, OCT. 16) Letter writer Joseph Connell says that "Romney supporters should take a cold, objective look at their hero," and then nonobjectively bash everything Romney has done, including the successful 2002 Winter Olympics turnaround that almost everyone agrees was good for America. Here is where Connell makes his fatal mistake, which dismisses his opinion as severe partisan hyperbole: Romney supporters do not think of him as a "hero," that is your word. Romney is thought of as a better candidate for president; supporters do not faint at Romney rallies like so many supporters of President Obama in 2008 and not so many in 2012 (but still way more than Romney). We did not need a Democratic Party-proclaimed hero like Obama in 2008; we needed a leader and instead got a community organizer who looks at the private sector as if they are all Gordon Gecko disciples. So after bashing Romney, Connell regurgitates the Democratic National Committee's class warfare handbook and uses words like "corporate" and "profit" with the negative tone as an average American using the words al Qaeda and terrorism. Advice to Mr. Connell: Do not imply people aren't being objective simply because you do not agree with them.

KEVIN METZ, VIA E-MAIL

Mr. Connell should get his facts straight about Romney.

First, private equity companies like Bain Capital do not "bankrupt profitable companies." They invest in many startup companies or buy companies that are failing and attempt to turn them around. Before Romney was asked to take over the 2002 Winter Olympics, it had a huge budget deficit and was at risk of being moved to another location. After Romney became governor, Massachusetts went from 50th in job creation to 28th in his final year as governor.

SAM KHOURY, VIA E-MAIL

No magic gas wand in the Oval Office

RE: "FEELING A LITTLE WORNT? MAYBE IT'S TIME TO PRIORITIZE" (METRO, OCT. 16) Letter writer Tony Markie

should do a little research and self-education. Presidents do not control gas prices. If they did, gas would be a nickel a gallon come election time.

KATE LERNER, VIA E-MAIL

Yep, people are just crying in the streets

RE: "SMIRKIN' JOE BETTER LAUGH WHILE HE CAN" (METRO, OCT. 16) How the whining right has the audacity to bawl crocodile tears over the perceived disrespect their golden boy intellectual leader suffered at the hands of a laughing Joe Biden during the debate is, well, laughable at least. Here is a crowd of mewling crybabies who have been perhaps the most disrespectful of a sitting president surely in recent memory. They have accused the president of being a) a traitor, b) a terrorist, c) a Socialist and d) a Muslim. What they are really protesting is that Biden didn't let vacuous statements made by the No. 2 gasbag on the Republican ticket stand.

W. MILLER, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. It doesn't help to worry about how your colleagues are going to handle a specific situation — you need to find out. Ask them about their past experience with similar situations.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. An arrangement that could be of benefit to you financially should not be treated with indifference. There's a good chance that the rewards within your reach could slip away.

♏ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. If you get careless about researching the experience of an individual who is scheduled to do a job for you, you could end up getting a rookie.

♏ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Usually you're pretty smart about when to keep things secret, but you might discuss something you shouldn't with those who are deliberately probing you for information.

♏ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Because your resistance to splurging tends to be rather low at present, it might be best to steer clear of stores that offer all kinds of unique items. Once inside, you might go wild.

♏ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. When something is really important, you can be a tenacious person who sticks to the course until your objective is achieved. But today these enviable qualities might be missing.

♏ Aries March 21-April 19. It behooves you not to act on impulse when it comes to your financial or business affairs. Be sure that what sounds good upon first hearing is able to stand the test of time.

♏ Taurus April 20-May 20. You've heard the old bromide "Haste makes waste." That could apply to you if you try to take shortcuts in your work.

♏ Gemini May 21-June 20. There's a good chance that a purveyor of bad advice could pressure you into making an unwise decision. Keep your own counsel as much as possible.

♏ Cancer June 21-July 22. Try to be tolerant of somebody who doesn't seem to grasp ideas or concepts as quickly as most people. In reality, it might be due to the way you convey the information to him or her.

♏ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. It would be best not to borrow any special equipment that you've never used before. You could get yourself in a heap of trouble real fast by destroying both your project and the tool.

♏ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. If you are ill-equipped and unfamiliar about a big-ticket item that you want to buy, take more time to learn all you can about it. Don't rush in where bill collectors are apt to tread.

Juan Castillo axed by Eagles, replaced at DC

The Eagles fired defensive coordinator Juan Castillo, in his second season at the position, and replaced him with secondary coach Todd Bowles. Castillo took over the job in 2011 after serving 13 years as offensive line coach. The move, made by Andy Reid, shocked many at the time. Now, it was Reid who had to fire Castillo. It also likely means Reid is on the hot seat. ● METRO

Browns sold

It didn't take long for new Browns owner Jimmy Haslam to leave his mark on the franchise.

The sale was approved yesterday and Haslam wasted no time in letting president Mike Holmgren go. He will finish out the 2012-13 season before leaving.

Head coach Pat Shurmur is the next man on notice as Haslam redesigns his new team.

'Back' to the wall

► Hughes leaves in fourth with lower-back injury ► Yankees fall behind 0-3 in series after another shutout ► Tonight's game could be year's last

JONATHAN DANIEL/GETTY IMAGES

After a week filled with clutch home runs, it was only natural to wonder what trick Raul Ibanez had up his sleeve when he came up to the plate with two on and two outs in the top of the ninth inning.

It turned out former Yankee Phil Coke had the trick up his sleeve in the form of a 3-2 slider that Ibanez waved at for the final out of a 2-1 loss to put the Yankees on the verge of being swept out of the ALCS.

CC Sabathia, who pitched a complete-game four-hitter in Game 5 of the ALDS, will oppose Max Scherzer, who beat the Yankees in Game 2 of the 2011 ALDS, in Game 4 tonight.

Coke's gutsy pitch preserved Verlander's best playoff start against the Yankees. He allowed one run and three hits in 8 1/3 innings against a Yankee lineup that had Alex Rodriguez and Nick Swisher on the bench.

He gave up two harmless singles to Ichiro in the fourth and seventh and Eduardo Nunez's solo home run leading off the ninth.

Other than those three hits,

► Hughes lasted just three-plus innings and allowed three walks before being removed.

132 Justin Verlander threw 132 pitches, but he couldn't quite get his second straight complete game. He left after 8 1/3 innings and allowed three hits.

nothing worked offensively for the Yankees, who are on the verge of getting swept in a best-of-seven series for the first time since Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale led the Dodgers to a sweep in the 1963 World Series.

Manager Joe Girardi tried Brett

Gardner in the leadoff spot with the idea that speed at the top or the order might help. It didn't, as Gardner grounded out three times and popped up in his other at-bat.

LARRY FLEISHER
sports@metro.us

What went wrong ...

1 Cano gets a hit — If he finished the series without a hit, Robinson Cano would have had the most at-bats by a Yankee without a hit in post-season history. Instead, Joe Collins remains the owner of that dubious mark after Cano lined a pitch from Phil Coke into left field putting two on with two outs in the ninth. Still, it made him just 3-of-36 this postseason.

2 Yankee killer Young — Delmon Young ran into trouble in April when he was arrested for anti-semitic comments outside his team hotel in Midtown. He's keeping his bat in the lineup in the ALCS and doing damage. He hit his second homer last night.

3 Locked up — The chances of Phil Hughes outdueling Verlander might have been slim, but we never really found out. Hughes brought back, no pun intended, echoes of David Wells in 2003. ● METRO/LF

Metro's NFL Power Rankings | by Mike Greger

FALCONS (6-0)

Where are the haters now? After six weeks, Atlanta is the only undefeated team in football. They are sound in all three phases — offense, defense and special teams, including one of the most clutch kickers around.

TEXANS (5-1)

The rest of the league should be sending Green Bay gift baskets after laying out the blueprint for beating Houston. They were held to 90 yards rushing, while the defense was limited to two sacks.

RAVENS (5-1)

Baltimore moves up a spot after gutting out a tough win. The bigger picture isn't so rosy, however, after losing two key defenders — Ray Lewis and LaDarius Webb — for the season.

GIANTS (4-2)

They had as dominating a win as you can get in the NFL. Also, David Wilson is gaining more trust and could be a new weapon for an already potent offense.

49ERS (4-2)

For the first time in a long time Alex Smith made too many mistakes. You can credit New York's game plan or blame Smith.

BEARS (4-1)

They jump up on their bye week because, well, the teams ahead of them all lost. Kudos to Brian Urlacher for telling everyone to back off Jay Cutler.

SEAHAWKS (4-2)

If they can get quarterback play from Russell Wilson every week like they did against the Patriots, then watch out. They already own the NFL's top-rated defense, led by rookie Bruce Irvin.

VIKINGS (4-2)

They aren't going to win many games if Christian Ponder has to drop back to throw 52 times. That's not a knock, that's just the way it is. Use Adrian Peterson.

PACKERS (3-3)

This was the Aaron Rodgers, the reigning MVP version, we all expected to see in 2012. Question is, will he poke his head out again next week?

PATRIOTS (3-3)

Even Tom Brady is human — as shocking as that sounds. The NFL's best offense has three losses by two points or fewer this season.

CARDINALS (4-2)

The QB carousel is back in Phoenix. Kevin Kolb is hurt (ribs, chest) and John Skelton is in. No matter, there's no excuse for losing to Buffalo at home. Worse yet, their next four games are against elite teams.

EAGLES (3-3)

The Todd Bowles era begins after two straight fourth-quarter collapses and some questionable play-calling on both sides of the ball. Andy Reid is officially on the hot seat.

BRONCOS (3-3)

Their win — from 24 back — is the dramatic moment we've been waiting for. Peyton Manning senses blood in the water in the AFC West.

REDSKINS (3-3)

One small "Landover Leap" for man, one giant "Landover Leap" for Washington-kind. RG3 may be bigger than Obama soon.

JETS (3-3)

Maybe Rex Ryan can ground and pound his way into the playoffs after all — in spite of the Mark Sanchez-Tim Tebow circus and despite not having Revis Island. They face the Patriots in a big one this weekend.

CC to pitch on full rest

CC Sabathia isn't used to waiting until the fourth game of a series to pitch. So you'll understand why he's a little overly excited to get out on the mound for Game 4 tonight.

"I am definitely looking forward to getting a chance to pitch in this series," Sabathia said in a conference call yesterday before Game 3. "I always say, whether good or bad, I always put the last one behind me. I am ready for [tonight]."

The main reason Sabathia had to wait until tonight, as opposed to starting in place of Phil Hughes last night, was manager Joe Girardi's decision to pitch his ace on full rest.

"I don't think there was any talking my way into [Game 3]," Sabathia said. "I think they had it pretty much set that Phil was going to throw Game 3 after we went five with Baltimore. So there was no point in me wasting my breath and trying to do that."

But don't think Girardi doesn't want to see his ace on the mound soon.

"CC, we obviously always look forward to seeing him. We know the competitor he is and how he will grind out a game," Girardi said. "He's never going to get too caught up with what happened the pitch before or the play before, and he has outstanding stuff and he knows how to win. We are pretty excited about it." ● METRO ► Sabathia pitched a complete game against the Orioles the last time he took the mound.

► The index posted its sixth consecutive gain.

Builder confidence for newly built, single-family homes posted its sixth consecutive increase, a one-point month-over-month gain, according to the National Association of Home Builders and Wells Fargo. The gain brings the index to 41 from 40, which continues keeping the score at its strongest level since June 2006.

September posted a three-point gain and August posted a two-point increase. In July, there was a six-point spike.

NAHB Chairman Barry Rutenberg said that while builders report an increase in the number of serious buyers stopping by their sales offices, challenges remain.

"The concern is that, even though demand for new homes is rising," he said in the release, "overly tight credit conditions are still constraining new building and new purchases at a time when that kind of economic activity and the job growth it generates are greatly needed."

David Crow, NAHB's chief economist, echoed Rutenberg's sentiment, adding that difficult appraisals and limited inventory for buildable lots in some markets are additional challenges.

"These are the complicating factors that make it difficult for builder confidence to reach and surpass the 50-point mark," he said. ZACHARY KUSSIN

THE REAL DEAL

Keeping score

Scores above 50 represent positive builder sentiments on the scale, which spans 1 to 100.

► Broken down by current sales conditions and sales prospects for the next six months, the respective indices of 42 and 51 remained unchanged. The metric that measured traffic of prospective buyers climbed five points to 35, its highest since 2006. And broken down by region, the index gained two points in the Midwest and West for a respective 42 and 44 for the month. The South gained three points, bringing its index to 39, and the three-month average for the Northeast held steady at 29.

3 DECOR LINES TO WATCH

1 Pretty plates: We're loving Mateus, a fantastical and colorful ceramics company from Sweden that hit Bloomingdale's shelves in September and is now being distributed to boutiques across the country. "Twenty years ago there wasn't any color on the table," explains designer and CEO Teresa Lundahl about the company's start. "I'm from Portugal and I had married a Swedish man and didn't have a job." So the former model decided to combine fashion colors she'd seen on Paris and New York runways with the traditional ceramics from her homeland for a whimsical tabletop collection. Now, her one-of-a-kind pieces, which are handcrafted in Portugal, are sold worldwide. They're perfect as wedding or housewarming gifts, or just to liven up your boring leftovers.

2 Zara invades your home: Zara is our beloved go-to for fashion-forward pieces perfect for nights out, job interviews, and just about anytime you want your clothes to lie about your paycheck — and now the brand has expanded its awesome repertoire. Last week marked the debut of www.zara.com, which features home decor that'll make your apartment just as chic as your wardrobe.

3 Dansk Kobenstyle returns: Kobenstyle, the iconic Scandinavian enameled cookware designed by Jens Quistgaard in 1956, is back. You've drooled over its high-gloss colors, cool sculptural handles and inventive lids that double as trivets in vintage stores, and now you can buy them brand new. Crate and Barrel is carrying the stylish line.

Don't let renovations overwhelm ▶ Amy Matthews offers advice on finding the best person for your job

When it's time to re-do your kitchen, you likely won't be hammering in the new cabinets — that's the contractor's job. While Amy Matthews was promoting the launch of HomeAdvisor, a website that matches home owners to home improvement contractors, the licensed contractor and host of DIY Network's "Sweat Equity" and "Bathroom Renovations" offered tips on how to find the best person for your project.

Hire a legitimate contractor

"You have to know they're licensed and insured," Matthews says about finding a dependable contractor. "You want to make sure you're getting someone good from a reliable source." She suggests using tools like HomeAdvisor's Pro Finder, which does background checks on all contractors in its database.

Know what you want

When planning a renovation, know exactly what design you want before hiring a contractor.

"The best thing you can do for yourself is research," Matthews says. "If you start your project and you're still designing in your mind, it's going to cost you a lot more."

Find someone you like

Matthews suggests meeting with two or three contractors. If they're all pricing the project around the same range, she recommends picking the one you get along with best.

"There are so many decisions to be made. You'll be calling them, they'll be calling you, so you need to have good communication or you'll be stressed out."

Communicate your schedule

Touch base regularly with your contractor about any scheduling issues that might arise.

"If your contractor can't start because a product didn't arrive, they're going to take that other job," Matthews says.

Put it in writing

Before starting, it's important to have a written agreement with a contractor for how long the project will take, Matthews advises. "You should never give more than 30 percent up front," she says. "Thirty percent should be given midway through and the remaining percent upon completion."
